

Abstract

In a radar sensor, a continuous microwave signal is passed through an RF switch (1) which is periodically controlled by a pulse signal. The pulse signal is frequency modulated (20) in such a way that the spectrum of the pulse signal is expanded without decorrelation occurring.

Using this measure, the noise level is kept low and the detection range is increased.

(Figure 1)